RASAMEEL'S EDGE IN ASSET MANAGEMENT

Well defined process

Our investment process is driven by a mixture of bottom-up research, with a top-down macro-overlay. We undertake detailed macro and valuation analysis to gain an understanding of potential asset class returns and risks, as well as expected asset class performance in the macro environment. Our Bottom-up fundamental research leverages proprietary screening and modelling tools to identify opportunities at the company level.

Global focus across all asset classes

We analyze and assess the major global markets - equities, bonds, sukuk, precious metals - as well as all the key indicators in our search for opportunities. This helps us identify trends in early stages.

Experienced team

The team is led by Robert Aspin, CFA who has over 25 years of experience investing through volatile markets. He is supported by a team of research analysts who focus on sector, regional and global research.

Proven track record

At Rasameel, we manage a host of different strategies which have generally outperformed their benchmarks, both on an absolute and risk adjusted basis.

ASSET MANAGEMENT: INVESTMENT PROCESS

The department uses a three-stage investment process in identifying opportunities. First, we conduct an in-depth macro research, which defines our big picture outlook, and then assess the opportunity set across the various asset classes and sectors. Lastly, we use proprietary screening and modelling tools, to identify opportunities at the company level. The process is valuation driven, with a bias to value overgrowth at a reasonable price. We constantly monitor risk to check potential variances in the portfolio’s investment returns and where appropriate, adjust the allocation made in accordance with our outlook for the market.
